Fall Clean-up Kills In- sects and Diseases.

If the remnants of old garden crops are destroyed immediately after harvest and weeds are kept down along fence rows, injuries by insects and diseases to vegetables next year will be materially lessened, according to specialists of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

Potato vines afford shelter for the potato stalk borer over winter, old asparagus shoots for the asparagus beetle, squash vines for the squash borer or weevil, cabbage stumps for the cabbage louse, and so on with the various insect pests and their hosts. Striped cucumber beetles, squash bugs, onion thrips, onion maggots, stalk borers, radish maggots, and tarnished plant bugs are also found in winter retreats in refuse about the garden.

The plum curculio, apple flea weevil, and leafhoppers and flea beetles of the grape hide along with the garden pests.

Collecting and burning such refuse in the fall kills off many insects and destroys their hibernating quarters. These crop residues may contain immature stages or eggs of some species of insects. Often great numbers may be killed by trap heaps of weeds, chips, hay and rubbish about the garden under which many insects will seek shelter. After they have thus congregated under a heap, set it on fire in late fall or early winter.

The organisms of the blights on potatoes, peas and celery, of anthracnose on cucumbers and beans, of tomato leaf spots, of onion smut and kindred fungous diseases have been found by the Experiment Station botanists to live over from one year to the next on crop residues. Clean farming will check their spread in the garden.

Gettysburg.

The newly assigned pastor to this charge, Rev. W. E. Ice, held forth in our M. E. church last night, delivering an able discourse and pleased his audience quite well, most of whom said, well done. If his sermons throughout the year will prove as able, he will surely meet the just expectations of the charge.

J. M. Moul, wife and daughter, visited in Pleasant Hill yesterday afternoon, and kindly gave P. B. Miller and wife passage in their auto, to visit his father, D. Moul, who has been very sick for about six weeks, but it is hoped is now convalescing. C. J. Miller and family also visited there.

The weather and roads were in excellent condition for such diversions and many persons embraced the opportunity so afforded.

Ira H. Reck and wife drove down to the John Walker home-stand, in the northwest part of Van Buren township, now owned by the Walker heirs, yesterday afternoon, and gave the aged ladies occupying it a pleasant and cheerful visit, enjoyed by all.

The first quarterly meeting of this circuit will be held Saturday and Sunday, the 6th and 7th of next month, at Versailles. The former meeting will be held in the forenoon of the former day, and latter in the evening of the latter day, when the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered by District Supt. Rev. D. F. Helms.

Lee Myers, in the employ of the railway company, was so unfortunate as to get a broken leg last week while switching in the yard at Bradford.

On last Thursday we had the largest rainfall of any during the season. The water simply poured down, not in drops, but in sheets, flooding the ground and starting streams in all directions over the low places. Fortunately it was not of long continuance and thus great damage was avoided.

Farmers, having about completed the shedding of their to bacco crops, will next give attention to cutting their corn, which will be no small job on account of a considerable part having been blown down by the hard winds lately passing this way.

Do we realize that election day is approaching and that some very important matters are at issue and on account of which it may be wondered if these things are duly considered? Silence and seeming apathy may be doing their worst work we do not see and know not thereof.

Mrs. Sarah Michael, resident of New Harrison and relict of Washington Michael, who died many years ago, passed from life yesterday. Her remains will be given interment in our cemetery tomorrow, funeral services in our Presbyterian church by Rev. L. E. Carr.

Kernels of Seed Corn Truth.

If you plant corn from stalks that have suckers, that is what you will raise. Like begets like. Select your corn seed from the stalk as it stands, so you will know its parentage.

Short, thick, storm-proof stalks with ears that grow low are the right kind for the central and southern states. Get your seed from such stalks because slender, top-heavy stands are likely to mean losses.

Seed ears from the best-producing stalks in the field produce more than seed ears apparently as good, but gathered without considering the productiveness of the parent stalk. The place to select seed corn is in the field, not in the crib; the time to select it is as soon as it is mature, not at husking time.

Take seed corn from the best-producing stalks as they stand thick in the field. Such seed is more likely to meet competition successfully than seed which comes from a stalk which stood alone and did not suffer from the crowding of its neighbors.

CONDITIONS ARE IMPROVED

Governors, City Officials, Newspapers, Business Men and Labor Leaders Unite in Declaring That With Saloons Gone There Is Decided Improvement in Moral and Material Conditions—Former Wets Admit They Were Wrong and Have Changed Their Minds.

Columbus—The Ohio Dry Federation, having in charge the campaign for state-wide Prohibition, has secured from officials, newspapers, and commercial bodies in states now dry, evidence showing conclusively that Prohibition helps business and labor, promotes public morals, and decreases crime and drunkenness. The testimony is most direct and convincing and is expected to aid materially in creating sentiment in Ohio favorable to the adoption of the dry amendment at the November election. Here are a few extracts from letters from officials and newspapers in some of the dry states:

WEST VIRGINIA.
Governor J. J. Cornwell: "The state has been greatly benefited by state-wide Prohibition. Crime has largely decreased. Pauperism is less. Labor has profited. Savings accounts have materially increased. Health and general welfare of the people have improved and business has been benefited. Were the question again submitted to a vote, it would receive a much larger majority than the majority given when Prohibition was adopted."

Charleston Leader: "Business is better. Labor is satisfied with the new condition, and labor unions and their officers have given public endorsement to Prohibition."

Wheeling Telegraph: "The results have been wonderfully beneficial, both morally and commercially. We trust our great neighboring state of Ohio will become dry."

Clarksburg Exponent: "The community in general has been much benefited by the elimination of the regular pay day and Saturday night drunks that were such a nuisance when we had the open saloons."

VIRGINIA.
Richmond Journal: "In place of saloons have come candy shops, groceries, delicatessen shops—in short, a proportion of all the varied retail industries."

Richmond Square Deal, Official Organ of Labor: "Excepting those employed in the breweries and liquor industries proper, working men have been even better off than was expected by advocates of Prohibition."

Mayor Harvey, of Portsmouth: "Prohibition results obtained in Virginia have been entirely satisfactory."

Mayor Mayo, of Norfolk: "Under Prohibition crime has diminished and business has been benefited."

GEORGIA.
Atlanta Chamber of Commerce: "As to any statement that Prohibition has hurt this city, it is utterly false and absurd."

Atlanta Tradesman: "The more thoughtful moderate drinkers are rapidly becoming total abstainers."

Savannah Press: "Prohibition has brought prosperity to many families that knew only poverty before."

Americus Times: "Every Prohibition law which Georgia has had, has bettered conditions."

Athens Banner: "The Prohibition law has been one of the greatest blessings that has ever come to this state."

NORTH DAKOTA.
Governor L. J. Frasier: "I believe I voice the sentiment of a large majority of the people of the state by declaring that we would, under no circumstances, have our existing laws governing the liquor traffic, modified in any degree whatever."

Fargo Courier News: "Prohibition is a dead issue in North Dakota because it is a success."

Jamestown Daily Capital: "The effect of Prohibition has been entirely salutary to business, labor, and the general welfare."

Grand Forks Independent: "A popular vote of North Dakota citizens would overwhelm any effort to make the state wet again."

Dickinson Recorder-Post: "A dry state is incomparably better for business and labor."

"Kansas would no more think of repealing the law against intoxicants than it would think of repealing the law against murder."

ALABAMA.
George B. Ward, President of the Birmingham City Commission: "Every passing month demonstrates, and clearly, that the monetary loss from Prohibition is being so offset in many other ways, financially and morally, that the result is startling."

Birmingham Age-Herald: "The effects of Prohibition on business have been fine."

Montgomery Journal: "The Journal cannot say too much in favor of the Prohibition law and its splendid effect upon the moral, political, social, and business life of this community."

OREGON.
Governor Withycombe: "To my mind Prohibition has been our strongest factor in the upbuilding of good citizenship."

Oregon Farmer: "State officials and business men are almost unanimous in approving Prohibition, and it is very popular in the country."

Major Albee, Portland: "In practically every way Prohibition has proved an impetus to business."

Portland Journal: "Under Prohibition Portland had one of the most successful commercial and industrial years in its history."

Supt. MacLaren, of the Pacific Rescue Society: "The change is marvelous. It is beyond a man's comprehension."

WASHINGTON.
Governor Ernest Lister: "There is no question but that the state of Washington is better off in every respect without saloons than it was when they were in operation."

Seattle Times: "The state has gone bone-dry in response to the desire of the people, and the law is one the people wish and which they will approve."

Spokane Press: "Spokane is much better as the result of the dry law. There are few who would care to go back to the old order of things."

Seattle Star: "If the growth of sentiment in favor of Prohibition were not taking place before one's eyes, it would scarcely be believable."

COLORADO.
Governor J. C. Gunter: "The practical benefits most conspicuous under Prohibition are the relief of suffering among women and children, the decrease in the demand on charitable organizations, the great decrease in crime and consequent commitments to state prisons, and the increase in the number of new savings accounts."

Denver Labor Bulletin: "The condition of Colorado workers is at least 50 per cent better as a result of state-wide Prohibition."

Denver Catholic Register: "Every line of business shows improvement except the liquor trade and pawn shops."

IOWA.
Des Moines Capital: "Iowa is satisfied with Prohibition and will never return to licensed saloons."

Cedar Rapids Gazette: "The number of people committed to Prohibition increases every day."

Sioux City Journal: "Former employees of saloons and breweries are, for the most part, employed in other callings and glad of it."

Council Bluffs Nonpareil: "Prohibition has stimulated and not hurt business."

NORTH CAROLINA.
Ex-Governor Craig: "We have had state-wide Prohibition since 1908. If submitted to the people now, the majority would be double that given in 1908."

Raleigh Times: "The Prohibition movement has meant more to North Carolina in dollars and cents than any other one movement within the present generation."

Winston-Salem Journal: "Prohibition has been a wonderful success in North Carolina."

Charlotte News: "We have gotten rid of the barroom element in politics and business."

TENNESSEE.
United States Senator McKellar: "Our state is more prosperous and the people are happier and better and more able to pay taxes than they have ever been before."

Knoxville Sentinel: "The present condition is a great improvement over the old order of things."

Memphis Commercial Appeal: "There has been a reduction in tragedies which have their origin in liquor. Working men are taking more of their money home."

Chattanooga News: "Prohibition is an unquestioned success."

PHYSICIANS KNOW
Why the American Medical Association is Opposed to Alcohol.
New York—The American Medical Association, with a membership of 81,000 physicians and surgeons, is the greatest medical society in the country. At its meeting in this city this summer, the following was adopted with reference to alcohol:
"Whereas, We believe that the use of alcohol is detrimental to the human economy, and whereas its use in therapeutics as a tonic or stimulant or for food has no scientific value; therefore,
"Be it resolved, That the American Medical Association is opposed to the use of alcohol as a beverage; and
"Be it further resolved, That the use of alcohol as a therapeutic agent should be further discouraged."
